By The Associated Press

BOISE, Idaho, Sept. 24—Mrs. William E Borah grew steadily worse today under the attack of psittacosis or parrot fever from which she has suffered for eight days.

Physicians reported the United States senator's wife was in a "critical" condition

After a day in which physicians' reports were hopeful for the recovery of the U. S. senator's wife, Dr Ralph Falk issued a bulletin shortly before midnight saying her condition was "not as good, tonight."

"Her heart shows muscular weakness," the bulletin said, "and she has had some rise in temperature."

Meanwhile consignments of serums to check the ravages of the parrot fever were being flown to Boise.

Both serums are from the blood of psittacosis sufferers, which medical authorities said was the only known source of anti-toxins for the disease.

LIBBY HOLMAN TELLS STORY

PROPOSAL TO SAVE GANDHI AGREED ON

Is Sent MacDonald as Physician Reports Mahatma's Condition Grave.

By The Associated Press

POONA, India, Sept 24—Leaders of the caste Hindus and the untouchables who have been striving for three days to draft a compromise plan on the electoral question which would halt the death fast of Mahatma Gandhi, reached an agreement today

The agreement followed several anxious hours in the earlier part of the day when a new rift among the negotiators arose at the same time that Gandhi s physician pronounced his condition to be growing grave

The plan was to cable the agreement to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald at London immediately in the hope it might be accepted by the British government in time to persuade Gandhi to end his fast today

Gandhi s condition grew weaker and his voice fainter as the day progressed He suffered recurrent attacks of exhaustion which prevented him from drinking water, which has been his only sustenance during his fast

Mrs Gandhi was in constant attendance beside the iron cot on which her husband lay under the shabby mango tree in the prison yard

A physician who was summoned hastily from Bombay this morning examined the Mahatma in the presence of the prison physician Later he said the time had arrived when Gandhi should not be subjected to any further strain in connection with the political discussions

Nevertheless Mr Gandhi formally approved the agreement reached by the political leaders removing the last obstacle to its submission to the government at London

The Mahatma was lying prostrate on his cot when the terms of the agreement were communicated to him. He raised himself on his elbows and with a weak smile signified his assent.

In cabling Mr MacDonald the leaders are asking him to withdraw that part of the communal award affecting the Hindus so that Gandhi may break his fast.

SUMMIT CO. COURT CLERK MURDER VICTIM

Alleged Slayer Found Wounded, Apparently in Suicide Attempt.

DISCOVERED ON PORCH

Woman Official's Love Affair Reaches Tragic Climax.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O Sept 24—A man with an artificial hand sought for questioning in last night s murder of Mrs Edna Stewart, 37, a clerk of the Summit county domestic relations court, today was reported dying in a hospital here He had been shot twice in the head in what Coroner M D Crafts says was an apparent suicide attempt

Tentatively identified through an envelope in his pocket as C W Wolf of Mantua Ohio the wounded man was found this morning in a pool of blood on the front porch of the Cuyahoga Falls home of Mrs W D Hobbs several miles from the scene of last night s killing

Physicians said the man has no chance of surviving

Makes Discovery

Mrs Hobbs had gone out to sweep the porch this morning when she was startled by sight of the man sprawled out near a swing Although investigators found one bullet hole in the house no one in the Hobbs home or in the neighborhood either heard the man ascend the porch or fire the shots

Coroner Crafts said the man had been shot at least several hours before his discovery but was unable to fix the time any more definitely Mrs Stewart a divorcee, was murdered at 10 30 last night

As a result of the story told by Miss Victorene Horton, for the last two months a housekeeper at the Stewart home, apprehension of a man named Wolf who had an artificial hand was one of the first objectives of the police hunt.

Jealousy Reported

Miss Norton described this man as a frequent caller on Mrs. Stewart and said he was extremely jealous of George A Garlitz of Cleveland a married man who was Mrs Stewart s companion last night and in whose arms she died.

Police had opened search for him in both Salem and Akron, understanding that he had moved here from Salem a few months ago

Mrs Stewart was entering her home in Cuyahoga Falls, suburb of this city when she was shot and killed She and Garlitz had just returned from an automobile ride

As the woman approached the front porch the slayer stepped from concealment in the shadows and fired Garlitz at the same time was locking his car

In the confusion the slayer made his getaway Holding Garlitz as a material witness, police immediately set to work on the theory that jealousy had prompted the slaying

Three Sons in Home

Mrs Stewart, twice married and divorced is the mother of three sons, two of whom were sleeping in the house as she was shot down and died almost immediately

At Wolf s Akron rooming house it was said he had been twice married and divorced and that he had the custody of one son, believed to be in Salem

$1,500,000 PAY CUT PROPOSED

All State Departments Included in Slash Asked by White Committee.

RANGE UP TO 15 PER CENT

Immediate Adoption Asked So Incoming Officials Will Not Escape.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 24—Ohio will save $1,500,000 a year through salary reductions if the legislature, convening in special session next Tuesday, follows the recommendations of Gov George White s committee on governmental economy

The recommendations were submitted to the governor yesterday also with a prepared legislative measure for carrying them out Salaries of all state, county and township officials and employes, excepting only common laborers, would be reduced in this manner:

Salaries not exceeding $1 000 annually, five per cent those ranging from $1,000 to $5,000, 10 per cent, and all over $5,000, 15 per cent On this basis, the governor s salary would be trimmed from $10,000 to $8,500 a year.

The committee asked Governor White for authority to continue its studies of governmental costs with a view to presenting further economy measures to the regular session of the legislature in January.

These additional measures, the committee said, would effect far greater savings than those dealing solely with salary revisions In urging immediate action on the salary cuts, the committee pointed to a provision in the state constitution which prohibits such adjustments after an elective or appointive official begins his term of office A majority of the elective officials will take office Jan. 1.

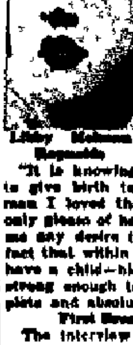
NEW YORK Sept. 24—Libby Holman Reynolds, facing the two great climaxes of her 26 years of life—motherhood and trial for the slaying of her husband—told Ward Morehouse, in a copyrighted interview published today by the New York Sun

"God in heaven knows that I did not kill Smith Reynolds."

The interview, obtained by the Sun writer at the unnamed rustic retreat where she is awaiting the calling of her trial and where she is preparing clothing for the baby to be born of a marriage severed by gunfire early last July, quoted the former Broadway torch singer as saying:



Libby Holman Reynolds

"It is knowing that I am going to give birth to the child of the man I loved that affords me my only gleam of happiness, that gives me any desire to live at all. The fact that within four months I will have a child—his child—makes me strong enough to fight for a complete and absolute vindication."

SURE! I DICTATED THOSE LETTERS TO MY STENOGRAPHER AND SHE WROTE THEM IN LONG-HAND! WE PERFUMED THE ENVELOPES, TOO! I HAD YOU GOING, DIDN'T I?
YES, AND IF TOOTS HAD GOTTEN HOLD OF THOSE LETTERS YOU MIGHT HAVE HAD ME IN A DIVORCE COURT! I THOUGHT----
THAT'S JUST IT, CASPER! YOU THOUGHT! HOW MANY TIMES HAVE I TOLD YOU EVERY TIME YOU TRY TO THINK FOR YOURSELF YOU'RE GONNA GET IN TROUBLE?
I'LL LET IT GO THIS TIME, BUT DON'T EVER TRY ANY MORE TRICKS ON ME! REMEMBER THAT!
CASPER, YOU SHOULD HAVE KNOWN THAT ANYTIME A HOMELY SHRIMP LIKE YOU RECEIVES ANY LOVE-LETTERS THERE'S A CATCH TO IT SOMEPLACE!
OH, SIGN OFF! I'VE GOT MORE TO DO THAN TO WASTE MY TIME TALKING TO YOU!

BY DARREL McCLURE

YOU SEE, MR. SULLANWAY — IT'S LIKE THIS — THIS LITTLE GIRL'S NAME IS ANNIE ROONEY — SHE'S JUST A POOR ORPHAN THAT DRIFTED IN SOME TIME BACK — AND I INVITED HER TO STAY ON AWHILE
© 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved
A POOR ORPHAN — AND I THOUGHT SHE WAS A PAYING GUEST — I EVEN WENT OUT OF MY WAY TO BE NICE TO HER!!
I DON'T THINK ANYONE COULD HELP BEING NICE TO HER — SHE'S A GREAT KID — SHE INSISTED ON DOING SOME KIND OF WORK — SO I MADE HER OFFICIAL CALF-NAMER FOR THE RANCH —
SAY, WHAT ARE WE RUNNING — A RANCH OR AN ORPHAN ASYLUM??
HONEST, I THINK YOU GOT THE BOSS SIZED UP ALL WRONG — 'COURSE, HE LOOKS SORTA CRABBY — BUT GEE, HE WAS NICE TO ME — JUST AS FRIENDLY AS ANYTHING — HONEST, HE WAS

RAILS LEAD IN MARKET RISE

Increase in Car Loadings Is Stimulant to Stock Trading.

NEW YORK, Sept 24—Stocks moved ahead quietly today, with rails providing most of the momentum.

The rise in car loading figures amounting to 65,478 for the week ending Sept. 17, was regarded as more than seasonal after making allowance for the let-down during the preceding week when Labor day curtailed traffic. An improvement of substantial proportions had apparently been partly discounted, however, and so, also, had the agreement reached by eastern railroad executives on consolidation.

From the opening, railroad stocks moved up a point or so, and held most of these gains through to the close against late profit-taking Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Pennsylvania, Chesapeake & Ohio.

Wheat and cotton prices were firm, which encouraged stocks. J. I. Case advanced more than 4 points and gains of 2 to 3 were made by American Tobacco B, Liggett & Myers B, American Telephone, Peoples Gas, Western Union and Macy. The motors, after their advance of yesterday, were quiet, although Mack Truck jumped 3 points to a new 1932 high. The oils steadied, following their Friday slump. Sales approximated 1,200,000 shares.

Reports from the steel industry took on a rosier hue. Although production last week was only 15 per cent against 14½ the week before, there were indications late this week that new demand was slowly developing.

Cotton closed 55 to 70 cents a bale higher, while wheat at one time was up more than a cent a bushel.

GRAIN VALUES TEND UPWARD

Reported Poor Condition of Argentine Crop Has Bullish Effect.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 24—Influenced by a bullish construction placed upon an official Argentine crop report, grain values showed an upward trend early today.

The report said the condition of wheat in north Argentina was medium to bad and elsewhere fair to good. Opening ⅛@⅜ up, wheat afterward rose further.

Corn started at a shade declined but made ¼ cent advance early.

Helping to lift the wheat market decidedly higher was announcement that the world's visible supply amounted to 436,000,000 bushels, against 383,000,000 a year ago. The decreases are largely in Europe and the United States. Word was also at hand that despite larger world shipments, the quantity of wheat on passage to Europe was not expected to increase materially, a large proportion of this week's shipments being destined to China.

United States No. 1 hard winter wheat at the Gulf of Mexico was quoted at about 1 cent a bushel over parity of equivalent grades of Canadian. It was pointed out, too, that gulf wheat was cheaper than either Argentine or Australian. Liverpool dispatches, stressed however, that heavy receipts in Canada were having considerable bearish effect on markets abroad. Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength, notwithstanding big arrivals of corn in Chicago today.

Provisions displayed firmness.

Since its last feature story appeared in these columns the Schaffner-Queen Co has installed an electric Symphonic Cathedral Console Organ in the funeral home at 360 East Center street. Thus each funeral conducted from the home now can be accompanied by the beautiful strains of organ music, and those who have heard or used this organ are high in their praise of its splendid tonal qualities and the added beauty which is thus afforded their service The public is cordially invited to call and hear the instrument The grand piano which formerly was their musical equipment is retained to be used by those desiring to use it for voice accompaniment

This is just another of the modern improvements which this firm is constantly adding to give their patrons the very best and latest in mortuary service Another unusual feature, which is a part of Schaffner-Queen service, is the insuring of all automobiles used in any of their funerals Whether your car is loaned to the family, or the funeral home, it is protected while in service

"Any style service in any price range on hand for selection," is a slogan of the Schaffner-Queen Co and seems to be justified by the unusually large stock in the show rooms at all times The casual observer is impressed with the number and variety of services available and at the prices which representatives of the Schaffner-Queen Co say are so much lower now than ever before To make their stock all inclusive they carry a full line of dresses, suits, shoes, hose, underwear—in fact every item of merchandise needed is available there.

To ever improve in the restorative art of embalming is also the constant aim of this firm. Harold F. Denzer, who is in charge of this work for the Schaffner-Queen Co is an artist in this line He is a constant student of latest methods, which together with his natural ability are the secret of his success A loved one entrusted to his care is assured of efficient and sympathetic treatment. Equally competent are the services of Mrs. Harold F. Denzer, as lady assistant, when her services are desired

The Schaffner-Queen Co. is exceptionally well equipped to serve on calls a long distance from home, in fact any place in the world. Through contact established in practically every city both national and international, this firm is able to care for its patrons wherever death should occurr and always at much less expense than the case could otherwise be handled Within the last few weeks they have handled calls in Chicago, Ill and Atlanta, Ga.—first call coming by long distance telephone from those distant points when death occurred and all being directed from their office.

The present firm, established in 1927 is the outgrowth of the funeral directing branch of the H Schaffner Co, established in 1866 The personnel—Frank Schaffner, Mr and Mrs. Harold Denzer, Asa Queen, Thomas J Woodcock Wilfred Schaffner, Ernest L Cooper and John H Bartram.

Embalming One of Oldest Crafts

Ancient Egyptian practiced the art of embalming It is therefore one of the oldest of the crafts But embalming as practiced by those ancient Egyptians, was so vastly different that one can hardly be called an outgrowth of the other Embalming in those days was a holy service performed mostly by the priests. It was done for the purpose of preserving the human body, so it would be a proper receptacle for the soul to return to, after it had been absent, regardless of the length of time That was the main object of the ancient Egyptians, but their success was based very largely upon the atmospheric conditions that prevailed in the part of the world where they lived The climate was very hot and the atmosphere was devoid of that excess of moisture that prevail in our vicinity

The process itself was very crude Only the shell of the body together with the heart was preserved It must be remembered that nothing was known at that time of the blood or circulation and it was their supposition that the heart beat was spirits boiling up They supposed that when a man was angry and his heart beat rapidly, that it was the bad spirits boiling and when a man was composed and the heart returned to its normal condition that it was the good spirits overcoming the bad But because of this belief their creed made it imperative that the heart be preserved

The entire operation required 70 days and in the end produced what we call "mummies." In their climate they were preserved for hundreds of years—but transported to our climate they would deteriorate in a very short time.

Embalming as practiced by their methods was so costly that it could be purchased only by kings. Much the same condition prevails today in many of the European countries. The benefit of embalming, both for preservation of loved ones and for the health of the community is denied most people there because of prohibitive costs

Here, today, embalming is available to everyone. A more improved and scientific art can hardly be thought of Here also the cost is so low that it is within the means of everyone Through its development it is now a method of dealing with circulation. Modern embalming technique enables the trained practitioner to care for any case in a satisfactory manner, regardless of the cause of death or the condition of the body What is done today, under adverse atmospheric conditions, would be amazing to the Egyptians could they return Embalming, in fine, is a method of keeping nature from destroying a human body and to so sterilize it as to have no food for bacteria and thus make it safe from a health standpoint The work must be carried out with the utmost precision to be successful in combating the powerful and irresistible laws of destruction that are the result of life itself

Harding Area Boy Scouts PlanAchievementProgram

An area-wide achievement program starting Oct. 1 and ending Dec. 31 will be the Harding Area of Boy Scouts' contribution to the national 10-year program being sponsored by the national organization of Boy Scouts, it was announced by Scout Executive Arthur Brooks this morning following a meeting of scoutmasters and committeemen of Marion troops at the scout headquarters last night.

Wilbur H. Symes, scout commissioner, who presided at the meeting, explained that the objective was "One of every four male citizens a four-year scout trained man," and pointed out how this would be a real contribution to the citizenship of America.

The points of emphasis in the round-up, Symes explained, will be a record of community service by each group in the area, advancement in scout rank and a quota of new members. Troops that show an advancement in rank of 100 per cent of their tenderfoot scouts, 50 per cent of their second class scouts and each first class scout to have earned five merit badges, will be eligible to receive an award by President Hoover, provided their membership is in excess of a year ago.

The continuance of the monthly lecture course in the "Principles of Scoutmastership" and a Red Cross first aid course to start in October was also decided upon by the scout leaders.

Plans for an archery contest at Camp John A. Owens on Saturday, Oct. 22, were outlined by Charles Howard, scoutmaster of troop 13, who will have charge of this event. A call for 150 scouts to assist with traffic parking and as aides at the Grotto convention next month, was accepted at the meeting last night and plans were made for each troop in the city to assist.

LIBBY HOLMAN GIVES OUT FIRST INTERVIEW

Declares She Seeks Not Only 'Acquittal, but "Complete Apology."

was actually suspected of murdering him stunned and horrified me, but it didn't matter. The fact that he was dead caused nothing to matter until I knew positively that I was to have a child. With that knowledge, with that gleam of happiness, I had something to live for, something to fight for. And now I want to go through with the trial. I want no strings left; no doubts left in people's minds as to my innocence. I don't only want acquittal; I want a complete apology."

Describes Tragedy Scene

Morehouse asked her to tell him of the happenings of the night of Smith Reynolds' death. The Sun quoted her as saying:

"It was about 12:30 o'clock, I believe, when I heard Smith call out my name. I saw him standing beside the bed, our bed, with a pistol to his temple. I remember nothing more, though I had the feeling of holding his head in my arms and having the warm blood pouring through my nightdress against my skin. I don't remember going to the hospital. I remember nothing that happened there."

She described Smith as "morbid."

"I'd often sit up with him until 6 o'clock in the morning, arguing and pleading. He had some strange delusion that I was going to leave him. He'd often disappear for hours at night and come back weeping with joy because I had not fled."

She said he was "never without a pistol."

"He often said to me, 'if anything happens there's always the little Mauser.' Many, many times I'd see him holding the pistol to his head. More times than I can remember he threatened suicide."

The baby she is expecting will be named "Smith," the Sun's interview said. "Boy or girl, that's to be the name," was the way she expressed it.

Had Her Own Money

"It will be hard to convince people that I married Smith Reynolds because I loved him," she said, "there were times when I pleaded with him to get himself disinherited. I told him we could get along. During my married life I paid my own way. I saw nothing of Any Reynolds money. Why, I had much more money than Smith had—much more. I made a lot of money on the stage.

"This trial will take every penny I can scrape up. I'll have a child to support. I'll go back on the stage. That's the only thing I know how to do."

She was asked where she would like to have the child born.

"I don't know. Not Cincinnati—not the South. Maybe in France. I feel like a man without a country, but tell Broadway that it's my fight and I'm game; that I can take it."

The interview in The Sun said Mrs. Reynolds is the guest of a friend at a "remote and beautiful estate."

Keehner pleaded guilty to killing his son and was given a life sentence in the state penitentiary.

INSULL PROBE BEGUN BY U. S.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Sept. 24—United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green announced officially today an investigation has been started into affairs of the Insull utility companies "with a view to determining whether any federal statutes have been violated."

Green conferred last week in Washington with other federal officers over the possibility of criminal action against officials of the Insull organization, which collapsed with a loss of millions of dollars to investors.

Another investigation has been started by the Cook county state's attorney's office. State's Attorney John A. Swanson has assigned an assistant to look into extradition treaties with France and Canada. Samuel Insull, organizer and head of the Insull system, is in Paris, and his brother, Martin, in Canada.

HUGH DIAMOND TO SPEAK HERE

Galion Man Will Address Rally Day Program at First Reformed Church

Three Marion churches will observe rally day Sunday with special programs. The Prospect Street M. E., the First United Brethren and the First Reformed churches have announced programs

Hugh Diamond, widely-known Galion speaker, will give a 30-minute talk at the First Reformed church Sunday school. A goal of 800 has been set for the morning attendance in the school. Supt. E. L. Cleveland is in charge of the program.

In order that the entire school may hear Mr. Diamond, the junior congregation worship will be dispensed with and the entire Sunday school will convene in the main assembly room at 10 a. m.

Mrs. Royal Andrews and Mrs. Robert W. Hucke will sing a duet, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. E. L. Cleveland.

The rally day spirit will be carried into the church service at 10:30. Dr. Robert W. Hucke, pastor, will preach on "Submerging the Barriers." Dr. Hucke has extended an invitation to the public to hear Mr. Diamond.

A goal of "more than 300" has been set at the First United Brethren church, Rev. Carl V. Roop, pastor, announced today. The program will open with music by the Sunday school orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Minnie VanAsberk, and a song service led by B. K. Hill. Miss Katie Cromer will conduct a devotional service. A vocal duet by Misses Geraldine Scranton and Leah Roop will conclude the program preceding the lesson study period.

When the classes have reassembled, John Bain will give a talk on "Christian Citizenship." Samuel J. Coler will give a reading and Mrs. Roland Keenan and Mrs. Harry Gatton will sing a duet.

The rally day program at the Prospect Street M. E. church will begin at 9:30 a. m. and will include a sermonette by the pastor, Rev. Karl W. Patow, on "How Big Am I?" The Sunday school and morning worship will be combined.

The Pattern of Prayer

A SERMONETTE

REV. J. E. DAVIDSON
Pastor First Church of the Nazarene

A CAREFUL study of the prayer given by our Lord to His disciples, would doubtless revolutionize the praying of most professed Christians. Not only should the nature of the petitions be given attention, but their order should be carefully observed. How often when we pray do we come first with our own wants and wishes. We are taught differently by the Master. Half of the pattern prayer is finished before there is a single petition concerning the earthly needs of the one praying. The order of the petitions then is exceedingly important.

The first petition concerns the hallowing of the Father's name. The supremely important thing in the life of every Christian is that of exalting the name of God, rather than that his burdens be lifted or his material interests prospered.

As the name of the Father is the first great concern of every true Christian, so the second item of importance is the coming of the Father's kingdom. That the will of the Father should be done on earth as it is in heaven must be the deep longing of the heart which springs to the lips in prayer before those things which concern our personal pleasures or advancements. This petition embraces in its scope the purification of the heart from all antagonisms to the will of God, and rests not until Christ is enthroned in the heart, the Lord of every motive there. It embraces also the extension of the kingdom to other hearts and lives and breathes out its longing for the salvation of the lost.

It is no accident that these petitions are arranged as they are, and we should learn that the affairs of our own individual lives, however important they may appear to us, are secondary to the kingdom and the will of the Father. Then comes a place in the pattern prayer for our most common needs, the material things in life which we are to receive in humble dependence upon the Father's daily care

Getting Into Action.

It would have been fortunate and beneficial if at least a majority of Marion county taxpayers could have heard the discussions of taxation and government at the meeting held here Thursday night under auspices of Marion's Council of 100.

Every owner of property knows that tax rates are high, particularly in proportion to the present income scale, but usually he does not know just why or how conditions can be remedied. He merely pays his tax bill, if he can, and complains about its size and the difficulty experienced in raising the money.

Most of the speakers at the Thursday night meeting got to the bottom of the question and analysed it through to the top. One illustrated his talk with graphs portraying in vivid and startling fashion how taxes have remained stationary and in some instances gone up while citizens' incomes have slid down the toboggan. It was the most convincing sort of evidence that something ought to be done to establish cost of government on a basis more in proportion with the public's ability to meet the cost.

The same speaker declared that government expenses should be cut in half. The declaration brought cheers from the approximately 400 persons present. If those cheers could be galvanized into determined action there might be results toward the 50 per cent slash.

Another speaker brought the discussion directly home by stating that city officials are asking $38,000 more for municipal expenses in 1933 than was expended in 1928, the last of the late lamented prosperity era. That is something city officials ought to explain, if possible.

Various remedial suggestions were offered for the general situation, all of them worthy of more than mere consideration. There should be consideration first and then action. One proposal is a "vigilant tax league," to be vigorous and insistent in looking after the rights and interests of citizens. "Be a lobbyist," was the admonition of another speaker. He said that the people should be represented in the outer halls of the legislature, the same as are all large corporate interests. They should be, and their lobby ought to get first place when measures affecting them and their welfare are under consideration.

The meeting Thursday night provided absolute proof that the people of Marion are concerned over taxes and government costs more than has been the case in many years. When their incomes were generous, they gave comparatively little thought and attention to the matter, especially in a critical way. Now they are forced by necessity to take a hand in government business, which, of course, is their business.

The Big Speech.

With more anticipation than was felt for any of his previous speeches the country has been waiting to hear what Governor Roosevelt has to say about water power and public utilities. On these public questions have been based his claim to a radical viewpoint and his appeal to western states. Would he be able to satisfy them without frightening the more conservative east?

Whether he succeeded or not necessarily must remain a moot question for the present. Contradictory claims will be made, none of which can be established with reasonable accuracy until the results of the election have been analyzed. Until then one guess is about as good as another.

Roosevelt policy, contrary to the expectations of many, does not include government ownership or operation of all utilities. It merely asserts the right of the people to own and operate such services and the obligation to exercise the right as a "birch rod" to correct any and all abuses which may arise under private ownership and operation.

This is a hedging assertion, which will not satisfy extremists. Obviously, such a policy could be placed in operation with no effect whatsoever on the power question, provided no driving force existed to develop its full possibilities. But neither will Mr. Roosevelt's long awaited declaration be of comfort to those opposed to public ownership and operation. It will be plain to them that once the way is opened to an attack on private enterprise by governmental agencies the latter will possess the power to drive private capital and employment out of the field entirely.

There is, however, nothing in the governor's speech to indicate that he would welcome any such extreme development of the policy he outlines. He speaks only of governmental power development at new points to provide "yard sticks" for private enterprise. Government would be able to determine, theoretically, what constitutes a fair profit while holding, at the same time, a threatening club over private management's head as a visible threat of what is likely to happen if government's decision is questioned.

This is the substance of the Roosevelt power policy. Opposed to it is President Hoover's definite refusal to grant that government has any right in the power business. Both candidates are aware of grave abuses in the capitalization of power enterprises; one advises correcting the abuses by threatening to supplant private management with government bureaucracy and the other believes that they may be corrected by processes of law and the eliminative effect of time. Governor Roosevelt appears to advise continuation of government's costly expansion into the field of private business. Mr. Hoover flatly refuses to expose a great industry to public control.

This is the power issue, a factor of coming importance in national politics. It is appearing this year for the first time, under the sponsorship of a man who hopes to attract liberal voters by his policy. Unfortunately, for his intentions, voters of all classes this year are more concerned in taking the government out of business than they are in providing new opportunities for public expenditure.

Waiting and Hoping.

There is nothing in the first full month's collection of the new internal revenue taxes to justify the expectations of those who estimated their productivity. Trying to put a good face on the matter is a hopeless sort of business. Only by the wildest stretch of imagination can it be claimed that collections during the remainder of the fiscal year will be great enough to reach estimated monthly averages.

Collections for July were expected to be low, and in most cases they were so much lower than expectations that amounts collected were negligible. However, July was not fairly representative, for the reason that revenue collected during the month was not reported, in most cases, until August. The figures for the latter month, however, may be accepted as reasonably accurate indicators of what may be expected.

With one exception, stock transfers, actual productivity was lower than estimated productivity. Most disappointing of all was the tax on brewers' wort, malt and grape concentrates, which was expected to produce an average of $6,883,000 a month. Actually, it brought to the treasury only $306,000 during its first full month of operation. The tax on telephone and telegraph messages was another major disappointment. Expected to produce $1,875,000 a month, its July return was only slightly more than $100,000.

Considering miscellaneous internal revenue taxes as a group, the American citizen finds that August return was less than 50 per cent of the treasury estimate—the difference between $51,000,000 and $25,000,000. The national budget that almost was balanced in theory is dangerously unbalanced after two months of operation. Budget makers are reduced to a Micawber helplessness; they are waiting and hoping that something will turn up—something like a mighty wave of prosperity.

Common sense warns them that hope is useless. With each dollar that is added to the national debt the necessity for further curtailment of federal spending is impressed more deeply. The impossibility of taxing the United States out of the red has been established beyond dispute.

Mr. Roosevelt and the Bonus.

Democratic headquarters in New York, disturbed by apprehensive and insistent demands that Governor Roosevelt find a place in his campaign verbosity for a forthright statement on the soldiers' bonus, pleads for patience. It is promised that the candidate will speak out as soon as his investigators have gathered sufficient data. That probably will be shortly after he returns from his tour.

Party headquarters present for consideration in the meantime a reminder that Mr. Roosevelt, in an interview before the Democratic national convention, went on record as being opposed to immediate payment of the bonus. A reminder comes from other sources that unless the governor intends to depart from his party's platform he must oppose immediate payment for the reason that a minority report favoring it was rejected by party delegates.

Lest the shock of disappointment be too severe to advocates of immediate payment, however, Governor Roosevelt's managers have permitted circulation of a hint to the effect that an alternative proposal for a veterans' relief program may be offered. Among suggestions admitted to have been made is one for an appropriation of $300,000,000 for relief of needy veterans. Presumably, such an appropriation would be made independently of the bonus payment fund. It would be an added amount, a special favor to needy citizens with service records.

The fact that insistence is made on a clear statement of policy on this subject by Mr. Roosevelt is evidence of a general suspicion that he will adapt his view to political expediency. Willingness to believe that he will abandon his platform and his own previous statement is, by all accounts, the most unflattering comment on his sincerity that has been made during the campaign. He does not need additional data or time to tell his countrymen what they want to know about his views on the soldiers' bonus. Courage is the principal requirement.

Comment of the Press

A DEPRESSION LESSON.

The lessons learned from the depression should not be forgotten, once we are safe on the road to recovery. For us in Texas, and in the South generally, it served to bring strikingly to our attention the fact that our people are too much dependent upon foreign markets.

Taking the United States as a whole, at the very height of prosperity only 10 per cent of the country's annual production of wealth is exported. But it is necessary to find a foreign market for more than half of the South's chief product, cotton, and in Texas 90 per cent of the annual crop must be sold outside the United States. Inasmuch as nearly one-third of the population of Texas lives on cotton farms, that means that the prosperity of our people, or the lack of it, is determined by influences over which we have practically no control. We should seek to change that situation as much as possible.

We are not suggesting that we can escape from the interdependence of the nations of the world. We can not escape from it. Henceforth, because the world has become a neighborhood, and the future will make it smaller rather than otherwise, the United States will have interests at stake whenever there is economic disturbance anywhere on earth. And the interests of Texas will be a little more directly involved than those of most of the other sections of the country. But interdependence is one thing, and absolute dependence is quite another.

The last three years have served to force upon our attention the brutal fact that entirely too many Texas people are absolutely dependent for their living upon conditions in foreign countries. It is that which we should seek to change. We may "seek" advisedly, because the problem is not a simple one. The direction in which the solution lies can be easily pointed out, to be sure, but the attainment of that solution will call for much wisdom and patient effort, and will take time.

If we are to become less dependent upon foreign countries obviously we must become more dependent upon ourselves. If we are to do less for foreign countries, we must do more for ourselves. The direction which our effort should take is toward the positive half of that formula. We must seek to become more dependent upon ourselves by doing more for ourselves.—Texas Weekly.

Daily Guide to Health

BY DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Child May Have St. Vitus Dance.

Not so long ago in a movie I saw a picture showing the peasants of central Europe taking part in what is called the "dance of Saint Vitus." This ceremony has been performed at regular times for more than five hundred years. A superstition attaches to the ceremony that all who take part will be protected against the disease known as "Saint Vitus dance," or "chorea," as it is medically called.

This is one of the common diseases of childhood. It occurs at any age but is most frequently seen between the fifth and fifteenth years. It afflicts girls more than boys and is found among the poor rather than the rich. The disease is rarely, if ever, met among negroes or the American Indians.

Chorea in children is often overlooked. There is no complaint of pain, and the only apparent sign of the disease is that the child appears fidgety and clumsy in his actions and movements. The child is in constant motion. The hands, the feet and the head move about in purposeless fashion. The muscles of the face cause grotesque expressions. As the disease progresses there is lack of normal muscular action, shown by difficulty in picking up objects, in stooping and in walking.

In mild cases, these movements entirely disappear during sleep, and they can be controlled for the time by the firm but kindly command of the parent or physician. In severe cases, the movements may continue during sleep and be impossible of control at any time.

There is backwardness in school work, for the disease is often characterized by dullness, carelessness and loss of memory. The appetite and general health are only slightly influenced, although there is some loss of weight. A mild form of anemia may accompany it.

Simple cases of chorea are not to be feared, but they should receive careful attention and special effort must be made to prevent the one serious complication. This is involvement of the heart. If the heart is affected the attack may persist for a long time, from several weeks to several months, and sometimes more than a year. If proper care and attention are not given, a persistent heart murmur results. This may seriously interfere with the health of the child as he grows older.

A child suffering from chorea should be under the personal supervision of a physician. Diseased tonsils and adenoids will be removed and all physical defects corrected whenever possible.

The best treatment is absolute rest in bed. The child should remain in bed for at least three months. During this time all meals should be served in bed.

Exciting and exerting games and all other forms of mental excitement should be avoided. Warm sponge baths should be given when the child becomes excited.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

A Reader. Q.—What causes pouches under the eyes?

A.—This may be due to a kidney condition; you should consult your physician. Puffiness under the eyes is natural in some people.

A.B. Q.—Is an operation necessary to clear up sinus trouble?

A.—In some instances this is advisable. This condition requires treatment over a long period of time before it can be entirely cleared up.—Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

NEW INTERPRETATION.

Sept. 23, 1932

Dear Editor:

Reply to your editorial under the subject "On the Sidelines" of Sept. 22, 1932, issue:

President Hoover states that he is keeping aloof of European problems such as Germany's plea for raising her national protection status to compete with other first class powers, and yet he admits he has offered an equation of an armament reduction policy that is composed of such intermediate factors. At any rate his interpretation of his reduction of armaments of the world, step by step, seems to be ending abruptly as he forgot to mention step by step, to the rear, March.

Very truly yours,
Arthur A. Craven.

Daily Talk to Parents

BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

LIFE IS HARD.

A little 6-year-old boy sighed deeply and said as from profound contemplation, "I never thought when I was born that life could be as hard as it is."

Asked what he meant, he explained earnestly how hard it was to have to wash every day, not to be allowed to put his feet on the couch, to allow his little brother to play with his train.

Not a very appalling list of grievances, but one may be sure that to the child they seemed real and sad enough.

The point is that all the things we require of children entail a certain giving up of natural pleasure-seeking impulses.

The habits which the child must acquire, the prohibitions which he must respect in order to live decently with others, represent in each instance a sacrifice of his wishes in favor of the wishes of the adult.

When this sacrifice has been demanded in an overbearing and tactless manner the child may well complain that "life is hard" even though nothing at all unreasonable has been asked of him.

Half the art of disciplining a child satisfactorily lies in making our demands in such a way that he does not feel them as the imposition of a foreign will.

Instead of saying, "Now you must go to bed," one may say as though voicing the inevitable, "It's bed time!"

Often one can give the child the feeling that he is exercising a choice by presenting him with alternatives either of which accomplishes the desired end.

Or one may enter into the play spirit of the moment and carry out in play some entirely necessary routine operation.

WOLVES IN OHIO.

Of all the wild animals that roamed the West in pioneer days, the wolf proved the most persistent as well as the most destructive.

One of the governors of Ohio, Samuel Huntington, who served in 1808 and 1810, came near losing his life in an attack by a pack of wolves. He was going from Cleveland to his home in Painesville on horseback late in the evening when an enormous pack set upon him.

He was unarmed but beat off the animals that leaped for his legs with an umbrella and his fleet horse finally carried him to open country, where the wolves would no longer follow him.

The late Dr. Norton S. Townsend many times told of hearing wolves prowling in woods along the road leading from Cleveland to his home in Lorain county.

A Washington Daybook

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Sept. 24—Deep inroads have been made already into those members of congress now seated despite the fact that the final day of reckoning still is weeks distant.

[illegible]

When "Kingfish" Long of Louisiana made good his threat to oust his colleague Broussard in favor of Representative Overton, one of his own men, the party senator was the fifth to join the ranks of those who will be missing in the senate after March 4.

Among the first to lose his post was "Cam" Morrison, the silver-haired, frock-coated North Carolinian who came up to take the seat held so long by Senator Overman.

Morrison's stay in the senate was colorful if brief. From the time he waved gaily to his wife sitting in the gallery on the day he was sworn in, until he flayed John J. Raskob, former Democratic national chairman, and his prohibition views later at a meeting of the Democratic national committee, he was in the limelight.

The aggressive Brookhart of Iowa, too, has been eliminated. Brookhart, who has been a storm center of the senate almost since the day he entered, may run as an independent in November in an effort to hold on.

As yet he hasn't intimated whether he will, declaring that he will wait to see. But there is a movement afoot in Iowa to persuade him to make the race. Fond of keeping the Republicans on the anxious seat he is at the moment doing that very thing. If he should decide to run, he may so split the vote in Iowa to assure election of the Democratic candidate.

A Republican stalwart fell by the wayside when Senator Shortridge of California, a two-termer, failed to be renominated. Unlike his colleague Johnson, the serious Shortridge could always be counted on for help by the administration forces.

The fifth is Senator Hawes of Missouri. But, unlike the other four, he is retiring voluntarily. He announced some time ago that he would not stand for reelection. The Democratic bid for his seat in November will be made by the son of Champ Clark.

In the house the casualties to date have been more numerous. The latest check shows some 60 representatives will be missing in the 73rd congress.

Europe Day by Day

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

At Sea, Sept. 24—The ship is maneuvering slowly into the Plymouth harbor. Out a porthole, England is a shadowy tracing against the orange sky. There is a chill to the air—spurious and raw, the iced breath of perfidious old Albion. It suggests a wee nip of doch and dorrach.

Gulls with curdling cries wheel over-head. This trip soon will be a memory. Romance has cut its snips and left its shreds. A voyage is but an interlude in travel. Young men who have whispered soft nothings, in a moon's glow, go on, perhaps without exchanging an address.

Yet, through it all runs a thin thread of sincerity. I never have made a crossing without forming at least one lasting friendship. This time it is with a diamond expert from far off Kimberly—a meandering octogenarian, whose philosophy of contentment is heartening these grumbling days.

At 84, he has passed through four major panics, in each from riches to poverty. Today, he has several hundred dollars and a ticket to Copenhagen left out of what, three years ago, was an enormous stake. Yet, he has a rosey air of confidence. "It's all simple," he said. "I believe in God."

It always arouses my curiosity to know what people read at sea, and I peek at titles. My tastes for voyages lean to mystery and biography. The book being read by the larger number on promenade deck is, appropriately enough, "Promenade Deck," by Ishbel Ross, New York newspaperwoman.

Statistics are rarely worth reading but these interested me. Snooping about the commissary I learn that on a round trip 9,000 tons of oil are used, 50,000 eggs, 25,000 pounds of meat, 95,000 pounds of ice, 17,000 pounds of flour, 350 tons of fresh water daily, 150 for the engines and 200 for passengers.

Beer at 9 cents a large glass is the favorite tipple on all types of liners. Four years ago the two most widely sold drinks were cocktails and champagnes. This trip I've seen but three champagne buckets.

The tall cedar of Lebanon, Sam Hellman, bumped into an enthusiast from Pittsburgh in the bar who insisted upon being joined in a Puddler's Cocktail—straight whisky with a chaser of beer. Sam had popped up for air after tough going with a Christmas story. Reluctantly downing the libation, he returned to his typewriter. "It was great," he beamed. "Sleigh bells began to ring. Yule logs to glow, Santa went into his dance and, in no time at all, the trick was done."

Nearing land, I invariably think of the wives of seamen along the coast with hand-shaded eyes, straining for a glimpse of overdue ships, and Pierre Loti's oft quoted and gripping lines: "And all the hours of the day passed, one after another, and all the hours of the evening, all the hours of the night, all the hours of the morning. As she counted the hours when he ought to have been back, a wild terror seized her. She did not want any more to know either the dates or the names of the days."

An original Floradora girl is aboard. There are faint traces of the rapturous beauty of her Casino days, when "Tell me pretty maiden!" was whistled and hurdy-gurdied in every block. She sits aft on an upper deck, reading awhile and looking out over the water. I noticed the book she read was "Ballerina" and I wondered if, in the neglect that is a pall bearer for fame, she might be reviewing old dreams with new fiction.

My coquetry for the trip was spent upon Ledia, a manicure girl. She commented upon my graying hair. "Distingue," she purred. Then I thought up one. "And you have flecks of shimmering gold in yours," I purred right back. Her expression had the vacuity of Rainbow scratching a flea, so she called the head barber to interpret. "I inquired," I lied, "if England was still off the gold standard." Otherwise it would have sounded sillier than all get-out.

From a near cabin, a joyous—he should be from the popping of corks—passenger yells through a porthole: "Land ho!" And to his "ho" I added a thin, wan "hum." Six days of oceaning and I'm tired of water. I want to kick up a little dust.

Servant palms are in furious itch in the companionway. I've often longed for nerve merely to shake each extended hand and chirp blandly: "Glad to have metten you boys. Regards to the folks. Vo-de-o-do!" And so an off-to-Buffalo down the gang plank.—Copyright, 1932, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Tuesday, Sept. 24, 1912.

The fifth international congress of Chambers of Commerce and industrial associations convened in Boston with Charles Nagel, secretary of commerce and labor, giving the keynote speech. One of the chief questions to be considered was a proposal for calendar changes which would divide the year into four quarters, fix a universal date for Easter and establish other holidays so that there would be no confusion in international business transactions.

The Progressive faction of the Republican party in the 13th-31st district met here and selected Frank E. Milligan of Bellefontaine as its candidate for the state senate. The Star's account stated that a reporter had difficulty in finding where the convention was being held and finally located it in a room at the Pilgrim Inn hotel.

The Woman's Relief Corps gave a farewell surprise party for Mrs. J. B. Ross at her home on North State street. She was leaving soon to live on a farm near Marion.

Miss Addie Reidenbaugh entertained a company of girl friends at her home on Pearl street in honor of Mrs. Milton Freeman of Sandusky.

Mrs. Edward Rowlands was honored with a surprise party given at her home on Willow street by a company of friends.

Marion's Woodmen of the World lodge elected officers, headed by O. W. Weist as consul commander.

The Boys' work committee of the Y. M. C. A. mapped out a campaign for increased membership. Eight teams were formed with H. B. Smith and A. W. Bryant, two of the department's sponsors, as division generals.

A drag to the left was a drag to the cliff. The wheel kicked in his hands. He wrenched it over and jammed on the brakes, and as he did so a number of things happened all at once. The left front wheel came off and went bounding down the hill, its scarlet and black catching the sun. The front axle came down with a heavy bump on the left.

The car swung round, slid, tilted, and fell over with a crash. Robert Leonard heard the sound of it as he walked up the path from the gate to his house. He stood still. Then he walked on again.

Of the three people in the car, two were taken entirely by surprise. Ferdinand had a moment of wondering why the road should be so much rougher going down than it had been coming up. Then he saw the black and scarlet wheel go bowling down the road like a child's hoop gone crazy. And then the car turned over and threw him clear.

Nan did not see the wheel or notice the jolting. She was looking over the steep edge of the cliff. She had never seen anything so blue in all her life. The tide was high, and the water came up to the foot of the cliff.

The first thing she knew of the accident was a violent jolt, and then the side of the car dropping away from her on the left. She gave a little cry and put out both her hands. Something struck her right shoulder. Then the car turned right over with a sound of smashing glass, and she was on her hands and knees on the rough grass with the leather seat pressing down upon her back.

Ferdinand picked himself up out of the dust of the road. He felt rather dazed. He wasn't sure whether he had been thrown clear or whether he had jumped, but he was in the middle of the road with the knees of his trousers torn and the car across the road, very neatly upside down, her bonnet hitched up on the stone parapet.

He couldn't see Jervis, and he couldn't see Nan. He felt grateful for the parapet, because if it hadn't been there, teh car wouldn't have been there either, but at the bottom of the cliff like a smashed egg. He came out of his daze with a jerk and ran forward just as Nan crawled out from under the front seat. She pulled heself up by the wall and said.

"Where's Jervis?"

Ferdinand ran round to the other side of the car.

She said, "Where's Jervis?" again.

She couldn't run, because her legs didn't feel as if they belonged to her. She crawld round the car, holding on to it. It looked so odd upside down. The sides were smooth; her fingers slipped on the paint. She got round to the other side and saw Ferdinand dragging Jervis clear.

Jervis did not move or help himself at all. Then she saw his face. And when she saw his face, she forgot all about her legs not belonging to her, and she let go of the car and ran to him.

There was a most dreadful moment. Was he dead?

Everything stood still, her thoughts wouldn't move. She couldn't draw her breath, and a blackness like the shuddering darkness of a nightmare made a wall around her. It was like being buried alive; her mind switched crazily back to that incredible stage hypnotist she once had seen—to him and his bedraggled subject whom he "buried alive" in a dirty white robe.

She didn't know how long it lasted. At last Ferdinand's voice came through the blackness. He shook her arm.

"Nan! Nan!"

Ferdinand turned back to Jervis. He had dragged his inert body to the roadside, and now was bent over him, his hand to Jervis' heart.

"Is he—dead?" asked Nan in a curiously small voice.

Ferdinand did not answer; he signalled her to come, and when she had sat down with the wall at her back he lay Jervis' head in her lap and quickly scaled down the cliff to the sea. He came back with his hat full of cold salt water. Nan wet Ferdinand's handkerchief, and bathed his face. There was a smear of blood mixed with dust.

"Oh Jervis!" she cried.

His eye lids fluttered. He sighed, and was still.

To Be Continued.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, Sept. 25.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds testimonials of rather mixed influences, with a sign of advantage or preferment for those in employment, although this may not be held as including the clergy. There is danger of wrangling, recklessness and passionate indulgence which might result in personal injury or loss through fire or accident. Writings rather than personal contacts might bring more satisfactory arrangements.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a rather contradictory year, with some gain by hard effort, steadiness and sound judgment, although a tendency to rash, quarrelsome and violent actions may offset the promised benefits, and result in personal injury or loss. Guard against accident and fire, theft, jealousy and treachery. A child born on this day may have a rather contradictory nature, being profound and studious, at the same time rash, headstrong and quarrelsome. It should succeed in employment and writings.

Notable nativity: D. O. Mills, capitalist.

For Monday, Sept. 26.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for much activity and pleasure in both business and the personal life. While business, especially all relating to writing and publication, should thrive, yet there may be a strong leaning to the pursuit of gain and happiness in social, artistic, domestic or romantic engagements. It is a favorable time for seeking preferment or honors from those in places of power and prestige, with the assurance of attained ambitions and enhanced popularity.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of great activity in business as well as in private relations and pursuits. There is fine prospect of favoritism from superiors and those in power, with attained ambitions and an increase of personal popularity and prestige, especially in those things having to do with artistic and social life, domestic and romantic relations. It is a time for pushing for these. A child bor on this day should be versatile in all cultural vocations and avocations and should reach a pleasant position by its talents and personal popularity.

Notable nativity: George Gershwin, composer.

Will Tries His Hand at Columning and Almost Outshines Odd McIntyre

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers and as there hasent been much in the papers why I am kinder stuck on something to write. I got it! I will do like those New York columnists do. I wish I could write like that fellow McIntire, I never miss him. Old Odd can make spinach appetizing in print. Then he has got one of the biggest herds of words to ride in and out out from. He is so far ahead of all other columnists there is no comparison, Then for real humor Bugs Baer is the King. Lord how that fellow can think of all that?

Well here goes on my first lap of tryng to be a columnist. I hate red neckties and I hate to see a fellow without sock supporters, even if he has got a diploma. I would like to be back on the old street corner at Oologah, Oklahoma and have one of the boys come by and say, "Come on Will lets go out on the prairie and tie a couple of steers." I will never stay in the city long enough to get away from the old steer roping. Whats become of the old fashioned windowpane that was out and we stuffed it up with gunny sacks? Up betimes and at my Stint. My first Stint is a lot of sliced fresh peaches, then some ham and then some eggs washed down with about a dozen saucers of coffee.

Nothing But Politics

I lay late, almost till six thirty. The papers came but having nothing but politics I cared not one whit for em. It does seem that our Country could be run much better by some one if we could only think who. Mrs. Rogers come down and we had the usual argument as to how late the boys stayed out. They have to drive over a cattle guard coming in and its as good as an alarm clock as it rattles under the car wheels.

There was a big opening in Hollywood last night, but as I had nothing new to wear or say I dident go. Our Scotty dog has got more fleas on him, weight for age than any dog in California. Son Jimmy come down at last to breakfast and said he was late as he had to drive half the night to find some movie house where they were showing a double feature. Argue with wife over what little pieces of real estate investments should try and pay on and hold, and which to have to lose and let go back. As we blowed up higher than a Wall Street margin speculator, we said "Put it in land and you can always walk on it." We did but no buyers would walk on it with us.

Sees Clara's Desert Home

Come by Clara Bow's Ranch away up in the desert in Nevada the other day. Got a Hollywood house right in the heart of the desert. Got cattle on it not a California ranch with rabbits or avacados. I love my navy beans better than any other dish, or half dozen dishes. Just old plain white navys, cooked in plenty of ham or fat meat, with plenty of soup among em. No catsup or any of that stuff. Just beans and corn bread, old corn pone, (white with no eggs) with salt and water its cooked with raw onions. Those three things is all I want.

Winnifred Sheehan, a Buffalo newspaper reporter who made good in a big studio. I used to love to sing coon songs and was the first fellow in Cooweescoowee district Cherokee Nation, Indian territory that ever did the cake walk. Who does the King Fish and who does Van Porter—Amos or Andy? McAdoo's daughter is very tall and very beautiful and very charming. Greta Garbo is highhattin Sweden more than she did Hollyhockville. I love to stroll down in the old part of Beverely Hills because I know of old places that have been built for four or five years. Marie Dressler is my pet actress. Charlie Chaplin is my pet man actor. I got two teeth out away back, but they did adjoin, and it shows when I laugh too much in the Movies. Why do they make the legs of pajamas so long? The fellow that wrote "State Fair" is out at our studio. They have already got the Hog that I am to play with in there.

Passing Up Polo

I have about quit trying to play polo, depression and old age hit me the same summer. Dick Powell, master of ceremonies in one theatre in Pittsburgh for three years, made good in a big Hollywood studio. He come from Little Rock. His father sold harvesters since wheat used to be worth cutting. I used to have two ingrowing toenails I know lots of people that used to have bad breath before halitosis was invented. There is nothing that will keep you wake more than a leaking hot water bottle. Every time I shoot a pistol I shut my eyes.

Mr. William Hearst has got the biggest house I ever saw. I used to know Paul Bern 11 years ago, but I never issued any statement to the press I don't know who is "Blessed Evening" this week, but as soon as they have a baby I will let you know. I was never in a night club, not morals just never had a card. Mrs. Zeigfeld spent the evening with us yestertime, as lovely and bright a person as one could meet. Jim Rogers burned his hand roping a calf. I dident, I missed mine. Just read a book called the Stump Farm, as fine literature as ever I tasted. Got in my petrol wagon and drove over half of Nevada.

Why my article is finished already. Why this kind of stuff is a cinch, me for this stuff all the time. Course I havent written it as interesting as they do, but its true. I must get a little more Scandal in the next one, and I know a lot.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Lee Chow's Theory Concerning Charles Owen's Connection With the Kidnaping Seems To Completely Absolve Samuel Brixton.

MY realization that Hugh Grantland's irritated manner toward me because of my inopportune question, was exactly the sort of discourtesy which Dicky is apt to evince in stressful moments, was a most salutary thing for me. It knocked into the traditional cocked hat a subconscious illusion I had been cherishing for years—that Hugh Grantland in his self-effacing devotion to me—without any possible hope of winning me—was incapable of the captious rudeness which often marks my husband's behavior to me.

An Illusion Smashed

It was subconscious, this contrast of the two men, to Dicky's disadvantage. I never had owned to my most secret soul the thought which I realized now had lurked for a long time in a remote recess of my brain, the conjecture that if I had married Hugh, I never would have been subjected to the annoyance, often real humiliation, which Dicky's temper so frequently has caused. Now I realized a truth that should be blazoned in letters of fire before the eyes of every discontented wife. Whether husbands, friends or lovers, men can change in an instant from adoring admirers to captious, snarling critics. It is simply a matter of sufficient familiarity and of provocation. There is, of course, a difference of degree, because the temperament of some men is far more equable than others. But the essential likeness is there.

Not that I count myself in any sense a discontented wife. I know, "beyond all doubting, truly," that Dicky is the one man in the world for me, that I prefer his most irritating mood to the royal admiring attention of any other man. But as I drew definitely away from the protecting shoulder that Hugh had deftly maneuvered to put close to me, I dropped the illusion of Hugh's infallible tenderness, which nothing could shake, into the limbo of lost things.

Hugh Grantland Relents

Doubtless it was the realization of all this that enabled me to get just the intonation of careless indifference into my voice as I answered his stricture.

"Please consider my question about Mr. Owen unasked," I murmured in accents so low that I viciously hoped Hugh would have difficulty in hearing them. "It really doesn't matter. I am sorry—"

"But, of course I shall answer it," Hugh said promptly, and I noted with a little involuntary thrill of gratified vanity that there was startled contrition in his voice. "Yes, Owen is up here alive, we believe, in the same shack where the girls are imprisoned, but we are not sure upon that point. He may be at some vantage point from which [illegible] at all the [illegible] [illegible] that we keep all [illegible] a minimum, so that we [illegible] lose the element of [illegible] the attack."

[illegible]

"You were entirely justified," I said with a cheerful casualness that I knew was my best defense mechanism. "Pray think no more about it."

"I will talk to you later," he said, and then, straightening himself spoke again to all of us grouped around him.

"We are right back where we started from in the theory of this thing," he said. "Charles Owen is evidently the guiding spirit of the whole thing. But we patently were in error upon one thing. Samuel Brixton had no hand in this particular plot. But he probably feared something of the kind, and paid the penalty of serious injury in trying to find out about it."

"What about the Chinese?" my father asked. "Do you think there are any involved in the plot?"

"Not as partners," Hugh returned decidedly. "Owen may have used one or two of them in minor capacities in order to give us the impression that it was an Oriental plot, but Lee Chow is certain that the messages and the passing by the school of the Chinese sightseer were simply red herrings. No, it is Charles Owen's enterprise alone, I am sure."

Harry Underwood Disagrees

"I wish we knew just where the devil is," Harry Underwood muttered, voicing the fear of all of us. "And I am afraid I do not agree with you, old top, about the essential innocence of the gifted Mr. Brixton. He may not have been in on the innermost secrets, he may have balked at keeping the girls imprisoned, but you can't tell me that he wasn't in on this in some way."

We were all silent for a moment, and I think to all of us there came the same question. Was this an impartial opinion or one born of the aversion which was Harry Underwood's for Samuel Brixton. It was an aversion, I knew, based upon the fact that Samuel Brixton had been the close business associate and friend of Tom Morton, Lillian's former husband and Marion's father who had brought so much misery into Lillian's life.

A Call for "Hu-ee-y"

"You may be right," Hugh said, in the placating manner of one who does not wish to dispute a man with a prejudice. "And now—"

There was the sound of cautious footsteps just below us. Then a hoarse whisper came to our ears.

"Hu-ee-y! Hu-ee-y! where be you?"

TOULON, France — Traces of helium gas have recently been discovered by engineers here searching for a subterranean water supply. It is believed that large quantities of this very rare gas lies beneath this Mediterranean port. My Beauty Hint

BY SHEILA TERRY.

HOW many times have we seen an otherwise well-groomed woman whose smartness is marred by a sprinkling of black dust under her eyelashes, where the mascara has brushed off?

To prevent this I dust liberally over my cheeks and around my eyes with powder before applying mascara. Then after the mascara has dried on, I brush the powder off with a small, soft brush, and the surplus mascara, which has fallen off into the powder, comes off with it.

Club-Minded

THE last week found Marion women getting club minded and next week will find club women launched on the 1932-1933 club activities. We like the definition of "A Woman's Club" used by one of the federated clubs in their year book this season and take the liberty of passing it on to you.

"A place where kindly thoughts are cherished,
Where high ideals are fed and
nourished;
Where charity in all its beauty
Is held to be a sacred duty:
Where peace and harmony
abound
And Members meet on common ground."

A Pledge

THEN we found a club pledge which we thought timely as well as something to check up our club conscience on. What an ideal club it would be if all followed these rules: To be regular and punctual in attendance; to be prompt in payment of dues; to give helpful thought and expression during business; to be silent during program; to be amiable during the social hour; to be loyal to all club members; to be cheerful in accepting, and conscientious in fulfilling responsibilities.

Ritzy

SOME of us can be ritzy and get away with it part of the time but hardly any of us can get away with it all of the time as some wiseacre has aptly put it. Even when one makes use of privilege accorded them they are immune from criticism and to prove that we know whereof we speak offer this one. Sitting in a theater recently the orchestra came into the pit sans the director. His appearance a few seconds later brought these harsh words from a cash customer: "I've never been here yet when he got in on time."

Auxiliary of Legion Post Observes 10th Anniversary

A PROGRAM, followed by a social hour marked the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the organization here of the American Legion auxiliary last night in the Legion dugout. Mrs. Catherine Tuttle, president-elect of the organization, presided as program chairman and the social hour was in charge of a committee headed by Mrs. Russell Snare. The hall was attractively decorated with streamers in colors of red, white and blue and appointments for the table from which refreshments were served were in yellow and white. A birthday cake with candles centered the table and individual birthday candles were the guest favors.

The welcome address was given by Mrs. E. E. Smith, president of the organization and the response for the American Legion, whose members, together with friends of the organizations, were guests of the auxiliary, was made by J. W. Llewellyn, commander of Bird-McGinnis Post No. 162.

Llewellyn Speaks

Commander Llewellyn paid a high tribute to the members of the auxiliary for their work as individuals during the World war and their efforts as an organization since that time. He told of the part Marion soldiers took in the war and the period of reconstruction which followed and closed his talk with a plea for loyalty and defense of the constitution. "As we approach another Armistice day we should think more than ever of God and country, the maintenance of law and order, the defense and preservation of the constitution of the United States," he said. "We should now as never before come to the realization that the preamble of the constitution of the American Legion is not only for the inner circle of the Legion and its auxiliary but that it is a promise to the American people that the returned soldiers will continue to render service to the country in times of peace as well as in times of war."

An interesting talk on the organization and work of the auxiliary was given by Mrs. Tuttle. The chapter received its charter in September, 1922, and the following officers have served as its head: Mrs. Walter S. Guthrie, Mrs. C. D. Schaffner, Mrs. Fred Borg, Mrs. James H. Eymon, Mrs. Emma Knappenberger, Mrs. Mamie H. Frank, Mrs. C. G. Francis and Mrs. E. E. Smith. The welfare department, Mrs. Tuttle said, was an outstanding activity of the organization.

Singers on Program

The program included the presentation of "In Flanders Field" by Eugene Hill and the Jubilee Singers of the North Main Street school entertained with several groups of Negro spirituals and southern melodies. Miss Pauline Parish gave a reading, "At the Theater," and responded to an encore with "Johnny Reads the Newspaper." Dance numbers, songs and song and dance sketches were presented by Patricia Fulk, Alberta Titus and Billy Fulk.

Mrs. Snare was assisted during the social hour by Mrs. Charles Howard, Mrs. Irving Dutt, Mrs. Jules Ralston, Mrs. Russell McAvoy and Mrs. Harry Baldauf.

Announcement was made of the reception to be given by the Franklin county auxiliary in honor of the new state president, Mrs. Lester M. Merritt of Columbus, Thursday evening, Oct. 6, at 8:30 o'clock at the home of Governor White in Columbus to which all auxiliary members are invited.

The latter came right back and demanded more. He'll get it—Monday night when the two again meet in a two-hour melee which promises to set a new high for roughness here. RECORDS FALL

Two Already Broken, Two in Danger, as Season Nears End.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—With the major league season due to end tomorrow, two league records have fallen, two marks for both major circuits are in danger and one of the batting races for an individual crown remains in grave doubt.

Led by Jimmie Foxx, the Athletics have clouted 170 home runs so far, passing the American league mark of 158 set by the New York Yankees, a few years ago. Foxx was just four short of Babe Ruth's major league mark with 56.

Paul Waner of the Pittsburgh Pirates smashed a National league mark by clouting 61 doubles.

The steady hitting of Dale Alexander of the Boston Red Sox gave him a one-point advantage over Foxx this week in the battle for the American league championship. His average up to today was .361, Foxx's .360.

BOTTOMLEY WANTS TO MANAGE REDS

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 24—The Enquirer said today that Jim Bottomley, veteran St. Louis Cardinal first baseman, is seeking the job of piloting the Cincinnati Reds next year.

Bottomley, the paper said, conferred for some time with Sidney Weil, president of the club, yesterday, and was promised a decision within three weeks.

Dan Howley, manager of the Reds the last three years, is out, according to the paper, and is seeking an interest in the Toronto club of the International league.

MERCHANTS TO PLAY

The Marion Merchant Greys, colored baseball team of Marion, will play Green Camp Sunday afternoon at the Shovel athletic field.

Glass that is opaque from the outside has been invented for automobile windows and windshields, permitting persons inside a car to look out, while persons who try to look in see only their own reflections.

MACKS WALLOP NATS TO CLINCH SECOND IN AMERICAN RACE

Four Senator Pitchers Pounded As A's Score 8-4 Triumph

By The Associated Press

Four straight pennants proved too big an assignment for the Philadelphia Athletics, but Connie Mack's great team has done the next best thing by nailing down second place in the American league.

Needing only one victory over Washington to clinch the "almost" honors, the A's went out and got it by pounding three Senator pitchers for an 8 to 4 win yesterday.

In an effort to keep their chances alive, the Nationals sent Monte Weaver, brilliant rookie with 22 victories to his credit, against the Athletics, but he was slammed from the box in the fourth inning.

The champion Yankees, meantime, uncovered a world series pitching prospect in Walter Brown, a righthander, who shut out the Boston Red Sox, 2 to 0, with seven hits. Babe Ruth, the famous convalescent, failed to get anything resembling a hit in three attempts.

PAUL WANER
Breaks Record

The Detroit Tigers worked St. Louis over twice, 6 to 2, and 12 to 0, Earl Whitehill letting the Browns down with three hits in the nightcap. Cleveland won a wierd contest from the Chicago White Sox, 13 to 6.

Paul Waner, slugging Pittsburgh outfielder, set a new National league record by punching his sixtieth and sixty-first doubles as the Pirates lost to St. Louis, 8 to 4, in the only National league engagement. The former record of 59 two-baggers belonged to Chuck Klein of the Phillies.

THREE TEAMS LEFT IN BASEBALL MEET

By The Associated Press

DAYTON, O., Sept. 24—The semi-final dash for the National amateur baseball championship opened today with three teams Detroit, Pittsburgh, and Cleveland still in the running.

Detroit stepped into the lead last night by eliminating Dayton, 9 to 7, after winning from Pittsburgh 10 to 8. Cleveland, defending titlist, stayed in the fight by eliminating Flint, 5 to 4, in 10 innings.

The results gave Detroit a tournament score of four victories and one defeat, Cleveland and Pittsburgh, three wins and one defeat, each.

Pittsburgh and Cleveland were matched for today's semi-final encounter, the winner to meet Detroit tonight in the first of a three-game series for the title.

THREE TEAMS IN FIGHT FOR THIRD

CHICAGO, Sept. 24 — Whatever glory there is in finishing third in the American Association this season is being fought over most vigorously by Milwaukee, Indianapolis and Toledo.

Indianapolis divided a doubleheader with Louisville, winning the first, 6 to 0 and losing the second game, 2 to 1, yesterday to gain a half-game on Milwaukee which lost to St. Paul 4 to 1. The split left the Indians a half-game behind the Brewers. Toledo also divided with Columbus, losing 4 to 3, and winning 7 to 3, remaining only a game behind Indianapolis.

Minneapolis got some good pitching from [illegible] and [illegible] Ringo Day to take a 6 to 1 decision from Kansas City.

LA RUE DEFEATED BY PLAIN CITY ELEVEN

Marion County Team Battles Hard Against Heavier Outfit; Score 6-0.

LaRue High school launched its football campaign yesterday on the LaRue field by dropping a 6-0 contest to Plain City. Plain City's heavier team jumped into action with a bang in the opening period and shoved across a touchdown before the LaRue defense commenced to click.

After the one counter was pushed over, LaRue tightened and outplayed the visitors but was unable to summon enough goal line punch to knot the score. The losers had the ball on the two-yard line on two different occasions but were unable to get it over the final line.

F. Schoby scored the only points of the game when he charged over the goal line in the first quarter. LaRue collected 11 first downs to eight for Plain City. Plain City was able to gather only two first downs all the second half.

Two Association Batters Tied for Lead in Hitting

EXPERT SEES LITTLE TO CHOOSE BETWEEN SERIES HILL STAFFS

Records Favor Yank First String Quartet By Slight Margin

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 24—Barring the rare individual exploits of a Pepper Martin or the dominant slugging of a robust Babe Ruth, pitching generally figures to have a 60 per cent influence in deciding baseball's world championship battle.

Otherwise, in the inter-league struggle that starts next Wednesday in the Yankee stadium, it's a wide open question whether the great right-handed corps of the Chicago Cubs can curb the left-handed Yankee sluggers or whether the more versatile sharp-shooting staff of the American league champions will prevail.

Despite their lack of an efficient southpaw, the Cubs have every reason to place confidence in the quartet of starboard flingers consisting of Guy Bush, Charley Root, Lon Warneke, and Pat Malone.

Warneke Series Rookie

Warneke, the pitching sensation of 1932, as a freshman, is the only one unfamiliar with world series pressure. Root and Malone, it is true, were caught in the 1930 hurricane of hits at Shibe park but they still rank among the toughest to beat in any company.

The only Yankee twirlers with previous world series experience of note are George Pipgras, somewhat erratic right-hander, and Herb Pennock, slender portside veteran.

The hopes of Marse Joe McCarthy's forces will be pinned on three series newcomers, Big Charley Ruffing, a righthanded powerhouse, Vernon Gomez, brilliant Spanish southpaw, and Johnny Allen, strong young right hander.

The records favor the Yankees front-line quartet, which has won 75 games and lost 26, as compared with a record of 70 victories and 42 defeats for the Cub "Big Four." However, Gomez, through the latter part of the season, has not shown anything like the effectiveness he displayed in the spring. Unless he returns to form, the Yankees' left-handed advantage may be wholly dissipated.

Pennock Still Good

Pennock, always a great "money pitcher," may have another great series performance left in his system but he is getting along toward the end of the trail, just as is the veteran spitballer of the Cubs, Burleigh Grimes. A big hero of the 1931 victory of the Cardinals, Grimes again has been threatened with appendicitis. He is not likely to see World series action. Were both "right," it would be worth going miles to see Grimes and Pennock in a duel of master craftsmen.

One of the "naturals" in prospect is a tussle between the two freshmen stars, Warneke and Allen.

LUKATS SEEKS POST OF SCHWARTZ

Nick Lukats, pictured above, has been showing the boys at Notre Dame a thing or two about lugging the pigskin as the Ramblers go through their daily work of preparing to uphold their prestige on the football greensward. Lukats is waging a great duel with Mike Koken for the post vacated by Marchy Schwartz. Both have been going great in practice. Who knows? Maybe one or the other will make fans forget the great Schwartz.

BROWN SCORES ONLY KNOCKOUT ON SIMON PURE MITT PROGRAM

Stops Kandell of Bucyrus in Third Round; Five Bouts on Card

Several of the amateur fighters billed for the punching program last night at the Eagles hall failed to put in an appearance, cutting the total number of bouts from the advertised seven or more to five. The battlers in these five matches went through their usual wild demonstration of punching, all of them throwing caution to the winds as they swung every punch in the hope of a knockout. One clean knockout and one technical knockout were recorded in the five fights. Brown of Waldo planted a wallop to the head of Harry Kandell of Bucyrus in the second round and that finished the fight for Kandell. It was the only clean knockout and came in the last fight on the card. Kandell weighed 165 and Brown, 162.

Joe Sansola and Kid Blumbe, two midgets, fought a draw in the curtain raiser of the program and then Ralph Anderson collided with Wayne Harer of Bucyrus in the first scheduled fight. Anderson took the decision after punching Harer around for four rounds.

Paul Kappalo of Marion was giving Dick Donahue of Marion a severe beating until the fight was stopped in the third stanza and the fight given to Kappalo by a technical knockout.

Howard Hostetler, one of the cleverest punchers on the entire card, hammered his way to a decision over Clyde Wilson in the next fight. Both weighed 118 pounds but Hostetler was too clever for the loser and gained a wide margin on points.

The hard-hitting Lyman Utter of Ashley was unable to land one of his sleep producing punches on K. O. Stout and Stout was awarded the decision at the end of four rounds of milling. Utter packs a terrific wallop but Stout kept himself out of range all the time.

Saint Cicero and Tony Caprino filled in the program with a wrestling match just before the final bout between Kandell and Brown. The mat bout was declared a draw as neither scored a fall.

CRESTLINE MEETS CLEVELAND SUNDAY

The Crestline Merchants, semi-pro football team will meet the Cleveland Bulldogs Sunday afternoon at Crestline. The Cleveland team is the strongest ever scheduled on a Crestline field and Coach Streuch has been putting the Crestline eleven through a strenuous week of training in preparation for the fray.

Cleveland has a number of college stars in the lineup, including men from John Carroll, Texas A. and M. and Case. Crestline is also made up of former college and high school luminaries.

The game will start at 3 p. m. A public address system has been installed and a play-by-play description of the game will be broadcast to the fans.
